

Technical Session on Industrial Waste and Water in Pakistan

Maqsood Zulfqar on Water, Waste water and Conservation during Technical Session on Effluent Treatment Plants.

"450 million gallons of untreated municipal and industrial waste of Karachi is being dumped into sea on daily basis, which is damaging the marine environment and posing great threats to future of Pakistan. Karachi has six industrial zones with more than 10,000 industries and unfortunately all of them have been discharging their waste into sea without any treatment", Said Maqsood Zulfqar, CEO Rastgar & Co,

Rastgar Air Compressors organized a technical session on Effluent and Waste Water Treatment Plants at Ramada Plaza Hotel, Karachi on 20th June, 2019 in order to address the growing demand of industrialist for sustainable use of water and treatment of effluent before returning them to environment.

Technical experts on sustainability and Development emphasized the responsible use of natural resources and highlighted the importance of water recycling. By adding Water recycling as a critical component of industrial processes, companies can improve their CSR and achieve sustainability. Recycled Water can be used for agricultural and irrigation, industrial processes, toilet flushing, and replenishing a ground water basin. They introduced various methods and technologies being used worldwide for effluent treatment.

A large number of industrialists from Textile, Food, Pharma, Tannery, Engineering and consulting agencies attended the seminar and appreciated Rastgar efforts to transform industry into an environmentally friendly and sustainable. Through Rastgar efforts, Industries become increasingly aware that they contribute directly and indirectly to water scarcity and pollution, and that this constitutes a risk they have to respond to. Therefore, a growing number of companies have started to explore their water footprint (WF) and to search for ways they can become better water stewards.

For more information please visit our website www.rastgar-co.com ♦